Lead, Teach, and Inspire

Bob Woolverton is a leadership expert. He has more than three decades of leadership experience, twelve years as a leadership instructor, holds a Master's degree in Management and Leadership, and is a graduate of the FBI National Academy in Quantico, Virginia.

However, Bob's leadership journey didn't start out that way. His leadership journey started like nearly everyone else who gets promoted – sink or swim. Figure it out on your own.

Like everyone else, he started reading all the best-selling leadership books, attending every class with the word "Leadership" in the title and even started a leadership book club at work. But he was still barely treading water, barely keeping his head above water. Then he went back to college and got his Bachelor's and Master's degrees. It was during his Master's program when the pieces of the leadership jigsaw puzzle finally came together. Sinking was no longer a threat, and he became a leadership instructor to help other aspiring leaders expedite their leadership success.

He is the author of The Part of Leadership No One Talks About and is highly sought after for guest appearances on leadership podcasts across the United States and as far away as India. He is a member of the National Speakers Association (NSA) and serves as a director on the board of his local NSA chapter in Seattle, Washington.

As a leadership instructor, Bob has trained more than 1,800 managers and executives on how to become the leader everyone loves to work for without resorting to being a people-pleaser. As a leadership speaker, Bob influences the audience to think about their leadership role in an entirely new way and eliminate the four words bosses say that prevent them from becoming great leaders.

On a personal note, Bob is an avid boater and golfer, although rarely at the same time.
